Judge Lloyd D. George is a federal judge with over 39 years on the federal bench, ten years as a bankruptcy judge and 29 years as a federal district court judge. Lloyd D. George was appointed United States District Judge for the District of Nevada in May, 1984. He served as Chief United States District Judge from 1992-97 and assumed senior status in December, 1997.

He worked on various committees of the Judicial Conference of the United States. His experience includes involvement in a number of programs, lectures and training for international judges and legal officials. As a member of the International Judicial Relations Committee of the Judicial Conference of the United States, Judge George traveled to Russia and other Eastern European countries to participate in legal training and constitutional seminars. He has taken part in a series of seminars in Dushanbe, Tajikistan, associated with the review of the Tajikistan Constitution. He has written on subjects of international judicial interest including an article on the administrative structure of the federal courts in the United States published as the lead article in the fall 1994 issue of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe's (CSCE) Bulletin. That article has since been translated into Russian, French and Spanish.

Judge George was a fighter pilot in the United States Air Force and was assigned to the Strategic Air Command. He received his B.S. Degree in Business Management in 1955 from Brigham Young University and his J.D. Degree in 1961 from the University of California at Berkeley (Boalt Hall). Judge George has authored articles on the administration of the federal judiciary, ethics and insolvency. He has won many awards, including the BYU Alumni Distinguished Service Award and the Notre Dame Club's John C Mowbray Humanitarian of the Year Award. In 2001, at the commencement at BYU, Judge George was the recipient of the BYU Presidential Medallion, and in 2005, he received the Jensen Public Service Award from Boalt Hall, University of California at Berkeley, in recognition of his distinguished career and lifelong dedication to public service.

He is married to LaPrele Badouin George and is the father of four children. He and LaPrele have thirteen grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

City Hall, Tenth Floor
400 Stewart Avenue, Las Vegas, NV 89101
Phone: 702-229-6241, Fax: 702-385-7960

Ricki Y. Barlow was sworn into office on June 20, 2007, as the Las Vegas City Council representative for Ward 5. Councilman Barlow began his interest in government at an early age, serving as student body president at Vocational-Technical High School and continuing on to the University of Nevada Las Vegas where he earned a Political Science degree. His career in public service began when he joined the office of then-U.S. Senator Richard Bryan as a legislative aide in Washington, D.C. Upon returning to Las Vegas, his public service career continued when he joined the city of Las Vegas Mayor and Council Office as a liaison. Upon his election, he earned an Executive Management Graduate Certificate from the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University and his Masters of Public Administration degree at UNLV.

His commitment to the community has been recognized by his peers with numerous awards and accolades for his service including the Community Partners “Portrait of Pride” Award, Nevada Library Association Trustee of the Year and Clark County School District PAL Program Supervisor of the Year. In October 2010, he received the Distinguished Leadership – Elected Official award, a DeBoer Award for Excellence in Planning from the Nevada Chapter of the American Planning Association (APA). In 2011, he was selected for the Western Association of Educational Opportunity Personnel (WESTOP) Achievers Award for his continued commitment to influence youth to pursue higher education, and he also was appointed to be spokesperson for Colors of Lupus Nevada.

He currently serves the city by sitting on numerous boards and commissions including the California-Nevada Super Speed Ground Transportation Commission, the city of Las Vegas Recommending Committee, the National League of Cities – Community Economic Development Board, the city of Las Vegas Management Committee for Emergency Operations, KIDS Vote, the Southern Nevada Gang Task Force, the Post Office Executive Committee and the National Association of Real Estate Brokers and is an active member of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc.

Councilman Barlow has taken pride in overseeing the transformation of the city’s Cultural Corridor, which includes the Neon Museum, and Symphony Park, a part of Ward 5 that is home to the Cleveland Clinic Lou Ruvo Center for Brain Health, the Smith Center for the Performing Arts and the Discovery Children’s Museum.

Preserving the history of Historic West Las Vegas is also one of the councilman’s top priorities and projects such as the restoration of the Westside School continue to move forward under the councilman’s stewardship. The councilman has also been instrumental in bringing new businesses and jobs to Ward 5 as well as important public works projects like the reconstruction of the most beautiful Martin L. King Boulevard in the nation.

Justice Ron D. Parraguirre is a fourth generation Nevadan and a second generation judge. His family emigrated from the Basque country to western Nevada in the 1870's to ranch the country south of Carson City. However, law was in the family's blood. Justice Parraguirre's great aunt was a law school graduate, although she did not practice law. The Justice's father, Paul, and his two uncles all graduated from the University of Denver School of Law. Paul Parraguirre eventually became a Fifth Judicial District Court Judge.

Justice Parraguirre graduated from the University of San Diego School of Law. After law school, he went to work in Washington, D.C. for then U.S. Senator Paul Laxalt and soon became counsel to the Senate Judiciary Committee, subcommittee on criminal law. Justice Parraguirre returned to Nevada two years later to join his father in private practice. He became managing partner and took over the practice when Paul Parraguirre was appointed to the District Court bench. Justice Parraguirre's judicial career began in 1991 when he won a seat on the Las Vegas Municipal Court. He was re-elected twice and served until Governor Kenny Guinn appointed him in 1999 to a seat at the Eighth Judicial District Court. Throughout his tenure on the bench, Justice Parraguirre has received, and maintained, some of the highest ratings in judicial performance evaluations.

As a district judge, Justice Parraguirre worked tirelessly, not only on his own caseload, but also while serving on more than a dozen commissions and committees to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the judiciary. Those included the Nevada State-Federal Judicial Council, the Supreme Court Funding Commission, the Access to Justice Resource Center, the Supreme Court Jury Improvement Implementation Committee, the District Court Settlement Conference Committee, the State Bar of Nevada Task Force on Multi-Jurisdictional Practice, the State Bar of Nevada Civil Pattern Jury Instructions Committee, Medical Malpractice Rules Committee, the Supreme Court Judicial Election Practices Committee, and he initiated the Eighth Judicial District Court Bench-Bar Committee. Prior to his election to the high court, Justice Parraguirre was the presiding Civil Judge in the Eighth Judicial District Court. During 2004, he served as President of the Nevada District Judges Association.

Justice Parraguirre won his seat on the Nevada Supreme Court in 2004. His term ends in 2017.

Judge Dawson was confirmed by the United States Senate in May 2000 to fill one of the newly authorized seats in the United States District Court for the District of Nevada. He received his undergraduate degree in 1969 from Weber State College in Ogden, Utah, where he attended on athletic and music scholarships. After graduating from the University of Utah Law School in 1971, he clerked for Judge James Guinan in the Second Judicial District Court.

Judge Dawson became Henderson City Attorney in 1972 where he served until 1979. During that time he was instrumental in the creation of the Henderson Public Improvement Trust, an issuer of tax exempt bonds. During his service, he represented the city in attracting Ethel M. Chocolates, Levi Strauss, Breyer's Ice Cream and many other businesses. He was also instrumental in the first issuance of industrial development bonds for the cities of Las Vegas and North Las Vegas. Infrastructure for the master-planned communities of The Lake at Las Vegas, Green Valley Ranch, McDonald Ranch and Seven Hills was financed with tax exempt bonds during his tenure. Those communities have been the driving force behind Henderson becoming one of the fastest growing large cities in the United States for the past several years. Judge Dawson served as legal counsel for the Trust until he became a full-time judge.

Judge Dawson was in private practice from 1979 until 1995. While engaged in private practice, he focused primarily in civil law. He was recognized by the Clark County Pro Bono Project for Outstanding Contribution by a Law Firm. In 1995 he was appointed Justice of the Peace for Henderson and subsequently elected to a six-year term. Judge Dawson was for many years an elected officer and director of the Henderson Chamber of Commerce, having served as President and having received the "Member of the Year" award. He has donated his time in the creation of numerous charitable and community organizations. He has also been licensed as a private pilot with instrument and multiengine ratings. He is admitted to practice in Utah and Nevada.

Mike K. Nakagawa was appointed to the bench in 2006. He graduated in 1980 from the School of Law at the University of California in Davis, where he was an editor of the U.C. Davis Law Review and a faculty-sponsored tutor in the area of civil procedure. He previously had obtained his undergraduate degree from the University of the Pacific in Stockton, California.

Judge Nakagawa was admitted to practice in California in 1980 and served an extended judicial clerkship with the Honorable Philip C. Wilkins, Chief Judge of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of California in Sacramento. He entered private practice in 1984 and was admitted to practice in Nevada in 1987. He was a partner in the law firm of Cooper, Nakagawa & Briseno, and concluded private practice as the founder of Nakagawa & Rico before his judicial appointment. His practice emphasized bankruptcy, commercial, and business litigation matters. He represented debtors, creditors, committees, trustees, and other parties in interest in Chapter 11 proceedings throughout California, as well as in Nevada, Oregon, Delaware, Illinois and New Jersey. He also represented consumer debtors in Chapter 7 liquidation cases and represented many standing Chapter 7 trustees in the Eastern District of California as well.

He frequently served as a resolution advocate for the Bankruptcy Dispute Resolution Program for the Eastern District of California. He was a panelist in bankruptcy matters for the Voluntary Dispute Resolution Program for the United States District Court for the Eastern District as well.

From 1995 through 2005, Judge Nakagawa taught bankruptcy law and reorganization at McGeorge School of Law in Sacramento as an adjunct professor, and also at Lincoln Law School in downtown Sacramento. He was a presenter at continuing legal education programs in the Sacramento region and a participant on numerous education panels sponsored by the California Bankruptcy Forum, the bankruptcy section of the annual meeting of Eastern District of California, and the bankruptcy section of the local county bar association. He served as a lawyer representative to the Judicial Conference of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Judge Nakagawa also was a member of the Civil Service Commission for the County of Sacramento, which had responsibility for administering the personnel system for the county, including employee disciplinary appeals (terminations, suspensions, drug testing, etc.) and employee classifications. He served on the Commission for thirteen years and as its chairperson on three separate occasions.

Judge Navarro was nominated by President Barack Obama on December 24, 2009 to United States District Judge for the District of Nevada. She was confirmed by a unanimous vote of the U.S. Senate on May 5, 2010 (Cinco de Mayo) and took the oath as a United States District Judge on May 25, 2010. She was recommended for the bench by the Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid while she was serving as a Chief Deputy District Attorney for Clark County in the Civil Division where she defended Clark County and the Board of County Commissioners from various civil lawsuits, including section 1983 Civil Rights cases and Employment Law cases from 2005 to 2010. She litigated cases primarily in federal court and the Ninth Circuit and also litigated a civil trial in state court using a rarely used statute and successfully removed the Clark County Recorder from elected office for acts of criminal misconduct. On January 1, 2014, Judge Navarro became Chief Judge of the United States District Court for the District of Nevada.

Prior to joining the District Attorney's Office, Judge Navarro was a Clark County Deputy Special Public Defender from 2001-2005 exclusively representing indigent clients charged with murder and facing the death penalty. During this time, she was also named Pro Bono Public Lawyer of the Year, an honor that was awarded by the State Bar of Nevada Access to Justice Committee.

In the 1990's, Judge Navarro ran her own successful law firm representing clients charged with both state and federal criminal offenses as well as clients seeking relief in Family Court. She was awarded consecutive conflict attorney contracts with the Eighth Judicial District Court and was also appointed by the Federal District Court to provide indigent defense services as a Criminal Justice Act Panel Attorney. Judge Navarro was also awarded the Louis Wiener Award for her pro bono representation of a non-English speaking victim of domestic violence.

Other legal positions Judge Navarro has held include: Associate Attorney with the law firm of Kelly & Sullivan, Ltd., Research and Writing Specialist with the Office of the Nevada Federal Public Defender, Law Clerk for the Nevada Appellate and Post Conviction Project, a Legal Extern to the Honorable Philip M. Pro, of the Federal District Court of Nevada and a Law Clerk for the Arizona Capital Representation Project.

Judge Navarro is a Las Vegas native of Cuban descent who is fluent in Spanish. She has authored several articles, including "Cultural Factors and the Voluntariness of Statements" and "Criminal Defense and the Consequences of Immigration Law." Judge Navarro has also been a speaker for the Criminal Justice Act Panel Attorneys on the topic of "How to Effectively Represent Non-English Speaking Clients and/or Clients with a Different Cultural Background."

She has always enjoyed being actively involved in her community. She is a 2003 Graduate of the Las Vegas Chamber of Commerce Leadership Program where she served as a panel speaker and has Co-Chaired the program's Criminal Justice Day numerous times. Judge Navarro has also served on several Executive Boards. She is a Past-President of the Latino Bar Association of Southern Nevada where she assisted La Voz, the Boyd School of Law Hispanic Law Student Association, to launch a mentorship program called Huellas (“footprints” in Spanish) which was awarded the 2008 Hispanic National Bar Association (HNBA) Law Student Organization of the Year Award. Prior to her appointment to the bench, Judge Navarro also served on the Advisory Board of the Nevada branch of the national non-profit Youth Advocacy Program (YAP, Inc.) and was on the Executive Board of DJs for PJs, a non-profit organization which over the years has collected and distributed more than 40,000 pajamas to children in need at Child Haven, Boy’s and Girl’s Town, Nevada Childhood Cancer Foundation, S.A.F.E. House, Safe Nest, The Shade Tree Shelter, Variety Early Learning Center and Women’s Development Center.

Judge Navarro has also been a Volunteer Instructor for the Las Vegas Junior Achievement Program, providing 4th grade students with an introduction to business and a volunteer Mock Interviewer for Yes, Inc., a Foothills High School program that simulates a business environment where students interview for jobs and she has participated in their Job shadow program. She has also been a summer Mentor for the Summer Business Institute and a Volunteer Instructor of Criminal Law and Co-Counsel to high school students for Trial By Peers, a Clark County Bar Association alternative resolution program for juvenile offenders. Judge Navarro assisted in providing training to Mexican prosecutors and their investigators as part of a program coordinated by the Nevada Attorney General’s Office to assist the Mexican agency as they undertake significant judicial reforms.

Judge Navarro is 46 years old and has been married for 18 years to Clark County Chief Deputy District Attorney Brian Rutledge, a career criminal prosecutor. Their three sons are ages 15, 13 and 10.

Steve Wolfson
District Attorney, Clark County, Nevada

200 Lewis Avenue, Las Vegas, NV 89101

Phone: 702-671-2500

Email: DAInfo@ClarkCountyDA.com

As Clark County's top prosecutor, District Attorney Steven Wolfson leads the largest and busiest law firm in the state. Wolfson manages a $65 million budget and more than 600 employees, 140 of which are attorneys who handle approximately 65,000 cases annually.

Wolfson joined the Clark County District Attorney's Office on Jan. 24, 2012 upon appointment by the Clark County Board of Commissioners. He was chosen to serve the three years remaining on a four-year term vacated by the previous district attorney who retired Jan. 3, 2012. Wolfson will have to run for re-election in 2014 to retain the position of district attorney.

Wolfson comes to the County from the city of Las Vegas where he served nearly eight years as a city councilman. He was elected in June 2004 to represent Ward 2 which encompasses the westernmost portions of the city, including parts of Summerlin, Peccole Ranch, Queensridge and The Lakes. On May 6, 2009, after running unopposed, he was sworn in for a second full term, which would have ended in June 2013. Wolfson resigned from his city council position to become district attorney.

As a city councilman, Wolfson served on the city of Las Vegas Audit Oversight Committee, Corridor of Hope Task Force, Local Law Enforcement Advisory Committee, Yucca Mountain Nuclear Repository Committee, the Southern Nevada Regional Planning Coalition and was vice-chairman of the Metropolitan Police Committee on Fiscal Affairs.

Wolfson was born in Los Angeles, Calif. He received a bachelor's degree in criminal justice from San Diego State University and a Juris Doctorate from California Western School of Law.

Wolfson brings many years of experience in the legal field to the district attorney's office. He has worked in the public as well as private sectors, most recently as proprietor of Wolfson and Associates, Attorneys at Law since 1990.

His public sector work includes a past stint in the Clark County District Attorney's Office as well as the United States Attorney's Office. He has also been active with the State Bar of Nevada by serving on the Board of Governors, the Judicial Ethics and Campaign Election Practices Committee, and other bar-related committees. Additionally, Wolfson was chairman of the State Bar of Nevada Ethics 2000 Committee, a blue ribbon committee established by the Nevada Supreme Court, to review and bring up-to-date all Supreme Court rules involving attorney conduct.

Wolfson has been married more than 25 years to former District Court Judge Jackie Glass. They have two daughters, Rachel and Rebecca.

Director since 2010, Tom Axtell has served as general manager of Vegas PBS since 1994. In Las Vegas, he has reinvigorated local programming, integrated emerging technologies, developed new fee for service business models, and created community partnerships to expand the range of sustainable public media services offered locally. His prior service includes public radio stations in Minneapolis/St. Paul and Fargo, and public television stations in Spokane and Milwaukee. He has experience working for nonprofit, college, and school district licensees as well as markets where the stations operated in sole-service, duopoly and multi-market situations. He has left the industry a few times to work as a College Vice President for Development and State Senate Legislative Aide.

Vegas PBS moved into its new Educational Technology Campus in 2009 following a successful $72 million capital campaign. The building is the nation's first LEED Gold television facility, and first post-Katrina, post 9-11, FCC Media Security and Reliability Commission compliant studio. Vegas PBS operates a multi-cast television service; programs four additional cable and five EBS channels; manages a media library with over 210,000 online and 16,000 on the shelf titles; an emergency communications data-casting service for police, fire fighters, hospitals, and schools; and a statewide Described and Captioned Media Center. An extensive Ready To Learn outreach program hosts over 600 workshops a year attended by over 100,000 people. Vegas PBS produces 20 local TV series and specials annually, plus extensive web content. Its Global Online Advanced Learning (GOAL) program offers 330 professional certifications and 5,000 personal improvement courses for high school students, teachers, medical professionals, workforce training programs, and returning veterans. Over 115,000 students successfully completed courses last year. The station routinely ranks in the top ten PBS stations in the Nielsen overnight metered market reports for sign on to sign off gross rating points.

Tom is active in Las Vegas community affairs, serving on the boards of the Atomic Testing Museum, United Way of Southern Nevada, Nevada Development Authority, Green Chips, Utah Shakespeare Festival Board of Governors, and Las Vegas Rotary. He has served on several industry boards including the Nevada Broadcasters Association, PBS, and NETA. Axtell graduated from Gonzaga University Law School, Spokane, Washington, and also holds a bachelor's degree in history from Macalester College, St. Paul, Minnesota. He has been married for 35 years and has twin daughters.

Mr. Axtell is Chair of the PBS Strategic Planning Advisory Group and Vice Chair of the Interconnection Committee. He also serves on the PBS Executive, Finance and Diversity Advisory Committees. He previously served on the Corporate Support Advisory Committee.
